Misplaced and erroneous modifiers examples/modifiers can be confused, but they are easy to solve. Make-up is to know which type of modifier is being treated. This depends on the noun you are changing and how close it is its modifier. A wrong modifier is a modifier who is in the wrong place. As a result, it seems to change the wrong noun. Misplaced: The seller tried to sell a car to a customer who was broken. (Broken is the modifier, but because it is more close to the customer, it seems that the customer is broken instead of the car.) Correct: the seller tried to sell a route to a customer. Misplaced: Mrs. Harris hung the design of the beautiful student on the wall. (Lovely should change the drawing, but she seems to change the student instead.) Correct: Mrs. Harris hung the student's beautiful design on the wall. Misplaced: We adopt the dog from the animal refuge with black spots. (Placing the phrase with black spots after shelter instead of dog makes it seem like the refuge has black spots.) Correct: we adopt the dog with black spots from the animal refuge. A dazzling modifier modifies a noun or a verb that never appears in the sentence. Correct the dazzling modifiers require a little more editing compared to the words of reorganization; It is necessary to add the noun or verb that the modifier is describing. Misplaced: We wait for the rain, the umbrella was propped against the wall. (The umbrella cannot expect rain. The person who expected the rain, and who prostrated the umbrella against the wall, is missing from the sentence.) Correct: waiting for the rain, Nancy has dried up the umbrella against the wall. Misplaced: holding the mail in one hand, the door was closed. (The door cannot contain the stakes in one hand. Without another subject, the phrase does not make sense.) Correct: keeping the mail in one hand, I understood that it was closed. Misplaced: After leaving the office, the cat jumped right in front of Howard. Modifiers can be words or phrases; for example, the word "pretty" can modify "girl," and the phrase "who was smart" can also modify "girl." According to the rules of grammar, modifiers should be placed as close as possible to the person or thing that they are modifying. When a modifier is not placed properly in the sentence, it can create confusion and is considered to be a "misplaced modifier."
